

The current financial crisis is taking a heavy toll on smallholder farmers and workers. If they aren't getting a fair price to cover their costs at this critical time, it means they won't be able to grow food in the future.

